The Psychoanalyst's Aversion to Proof

A call-to-arms to Freudians everywhere and a fresh diagnosis of the major problem confronting psychoanalysis today, The Psychoanalyst's Aversion to Proof is a book that APsaA science director Mark Solms says “could help determine the future direction of American psychiatry and mental science.” By showing how and why Freudians have avoided proving their theories, The Psychoanalyst's Aversion to Proof charts a new future of growth and engagement in which psychoanalysis fulfills its promise: to rescue humanity from its own irrationality

Austin Ratner is a prizewinning novelist and M.D. who studied psychoanalysis through a mentorship at the American Psychoanalytic Association. He is a graduate of John Hopkins Medical School and the Hanna Perkins School for Child Development.

7:00 p.m. remarks by Dr. Ratner followed by book signing.

Wine and cheese will be served.

Held at Appletree Books, 12419 Cedar Rd., Cleveland Ohio 44106
